

Caroline Woodworth Named to Financial News' 2019 list of Rising Stars in European Private Equity

May 20, 2019

Caroline Woodworth, Vice President in General Atlantic's London office, was named in Financial News' list of the 25 rising stars in European private equity. Caroline focuses on General Atlantic's investments in the Financial Services sector and was recognized for her contributions to the firm's investment in Deutsche Börse's Index and Portfolio Risk/Analytics Business, Greensill, and the IPO of Network International, amongst other personal and career achievements.

The annual Rising Stars in European Private Equity program honors professionals within the private equity industry who are under the age of 40, based in Europe, and have demonstrated excellence in their field. The final list was drawn from almost 100 eligible candidates, with the final 25 selected based on their position within their firm, career background, recent investment activity, demonstrable value-add to the portfolio, and charitable or philanthropic interests.
